The Securities Commission unveiled the Corporate Governance Blueprint in July 2011. A number of important changes are going to be introduced that will impact every listed company. Voting rules will change; so will the responsibilities of directors, company secretaries and other professionals such as internal auditors and risk managers. This briefing will provide a comprehensive overview of the changes and analyse the practical implications for listed companies and their directors and officers.

- Background to the CG Blueprint
- Overview of the changes
- Analysis of practical implications for:
  - Shareholder rights
  - New requirements for institutional investors
  - Changed role — Board, Directors and Company Secretaries
  - Disclosure requirements
  - Enforcement changes
  - Auditors, Risk Managers and other Advisers
- Timing and implementation

Presenter Raymond Corray is an Associate of Columbus Circle Governance and leader of its Research & Development Unit.
